Skinny Myths is one of the most recognized and trusted sources for news regarding diet and weight loss myths and advances in bariatrics. With about two-thirds of adults in the United States overweight, and almost one-third obese, education efforts in this area is even more important. Written by industry practitioners, the site doesn't just summarize news on weight loss - our experts address issues and get the real answers that consumers want. This expertise, coupled with a willingness to ask hard questions, has made Skinny Myths a favorite destination for consumers looking for 'real' information.

Skinny Myths looks for long term partnerships with advertisers who deal in the weight loss industry. Please note that sponsorships thru September 2008 are booked.

If you would like to receive the Skinny Myths Media Kit and are interested in sponsoring the site beginning September 1st, please complete the contact form here.
